Dear Mr. Mosovsky:

This is a final response to your 25 June 2007 Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request, received on 26 June 2007, for:

“Information or records on intelligence reports relating to terrorism or the suspicion of terrorism.”

We have assigned your request the reference number above.

The CIA, whose primary mission is the collection and analysis of foreign intelligence, has a vast amount of records in a variety of offices and files that are indexed and therefore retrievable under the name of a specific country or region of the world or under a broad subject of public interest. An overly broad search would locate a vast quantity of records, much of which would be extraneous, mentioning the subject of the request only in passing, thus being of little or no value to you. Further, the review of such records would impose an excessive and unreasonable burden on the Agency, and pursuant to relevant precedent, we must decline to process such requests.

Sincerely,

A stylized, blocky signature of Scott Koch, consisting of a large, irregular shape with a small loop at the end.

Scott Koch
Information and Privacy Coordinator
